CORPORATE RESTRUCTURING THROUGH MERGERS ACQUISITIONS AND TAKEOVERS – AN OVER VIEW

Introduction

Takeovers, mergers and acquisition activities continue to accelerate. From banking to oil exploration and telecommunication to power generation, companies are coming together as never before. Not only this new industries like e-commerce and biotechnology have been exploding and old industries are being transformed. Corporate Restructuring through acquisitions, mergers, amalgamations, arrangements and takeovers has become integral to corporate strategy today.

Mergers

A merger has been defined as ‘the fusion or absorption of one thing or right into another’. A merger has also been defined as an arrangement whereby the assets of two (or more) companies become vested in, or under the control of one company (which may or may not be one of the original two Companies), which has as its shareholders all or substantially all, the shareholders of the two companies.
In a merger, one of the two existing companies merges its identity into another existing company or one of more existing companies may form a new company and merge their identities into the new company by transferring their businesses and undertakings including all other assets and liabilities to the new company (hereinafter referred to as the merged company). The shareholders of the company or companies, whose identity/ies has/have been merged (hereinafter referred to as the merging company or companies, as the case may be) will have substantial shareholding in the merged company. They will be allotted shares in the merged company in exchange for the shares held by them in the merging company or companies, as the case may be, according to the shares exchange ratio incorporated in the scheme of merger as approved by all or the prescribed majority of the shareholders of the merging company or companies and the merged company in their separate general meetings and sanctioned by the court.

CATEGORIES OF MERGERS

Mergers may be broadly classified as follows:

(i) Cogeneric — within same industries and taking place at the same level of economic activity — exploration, production or manufacturing wholesale distribution or retail distribution to the ultimate consumer.

(ii) Conglomerate – between unrelated businesses

Cogeneric Mergers

Cogeneric mergers are of two types:

Horizontal Merger

This class of merger is a merger between business competitors who are manufacturers or distributors of the same type of products or who render similar or same type of services for profit. It involves joining together of two or more companies which are producing essentially the same products or rendering same or similar services or their products and services directly to compete in the market with each other. Horizontal mergers result into a reduction in the number of competing companies in an industry and increase the scope for economies of scale and elimination of duplicate facilities. However, their main drawback is that they promote monopolistic trend in the industrial sector. The acquisition in 1999 of Mobil by Exxon represented a horizontal merger.

Vertical Merger

In a vertical merger two or more companies are complementary to each other e.g. one of the companies is engaged in the manufacture of a particular product, the other is established and expert in the marketing of that product. In this merger the two companies merge and control the production and marketing of the same product.
A vertical merger may result into smooth and efficient flow of production and distribution of a particular product and reduction in handling and stockholding costs. It also poses a risk of monopolistic trend in the industry.

Conglomerate Merger

A conglomerate merger involves coming together of two companies in different industries i.e., the businesses of the two companies are not related to each other, neither horizontally nor vertically. They lack any commonality either in their end product, or in the rendering of any specific type of service to the society. This is the type of merger of companies which are neither competitors, nor complementaries nor suppliers of a particular raw material nor consumers of a particular product or consumable. A conglomerate merger is one which is neither horizontal nor vertical. In this the merging companies operate in unrelated markets having no functional economic relationship.

Mergers may further be categorised as:

Cash Merger

A merger in which certain shareholders are required to accept cash for their shares while other shareholders receive shares in the continuing enterprise.

Defacto Merger

Defacto merger has been defined as a transaction that has the economic effect of a statutory merger but is cast in the form of an acquisition of assets.

Down Stream Merger

The merger of parent company into its subsidiary is called down stream merger.

Up stream Merger

The merger of subsidiary company into its parent company is called an up stream merger.

Short-form Merger

A number of statutes provide special company rules for the merger of a subsidiary into its parent where the parent owns substantially all of the shares of the subsidiary. This is known as a short form merger. Short form mergers generally may be effected by adoption of a resolution of merger by the parent company, and mailing a copy of plan of merger to all shareholders of subsidiary and filing the executed documents with the prescribed authority under the statute. This type of merger is less expensive and time consuming than the normal type of merger.

Triangular Merger
Triangular merger means the amalgamation of two companies by which the disappearing company is merged into subsidiary of surviving company and shareholders of the disappearing company receive shares of the surviving company.

Reverse Merger

Reverse merger takes place when a healthy company amalgamates with a financially weak company. In the context of the provisions of the Companies Act, 1956, there is no difference between regular merger and reverse merger. It is like any other amalgamation. [For a detailed analysis of the concept of reverse merger, refer to Gujrat High Court judgment in Bihari Mills Ltd. case (1985) 58 Comp Cas 6].

Reverse merger can be carried out through the High Court route, but where one of the merging companies is a sick industrial company under SICA, such merger must take place through BIFR. On the amalgamation becoming effective, the sick company’s name may be changed to that of the healthy company.

Reverse merger automatically makes the transferor-company entitled for the benefit of carry forward and set-off of loss and unabsorbed depreciation of the transferee-company. There is no need to comply with Section 72A of Income Tax Act.

Amalgamation

Amalgamation is an ‘arrangement’ or ‘reconstruction’. Amalgamation is a legal process by which two or more companies are joined together to form a new entity or one or more companies are to be absorbed or blended with another and as a consequence the amalgamating company loses its existence and its shareholders become the shareholders of new company or the amalgamated company. In case of amalgamation a new company may come into existence or an old company may survive while amalgamating company may lose its existence.

Takeover

Takeover means acquisition by one company of control over another, usually by buying all or a majority of its shares. A transaction or a series of transactions by which a person acquires control over the assets of a company is generally known as takeover of the company. On the other hand an arrangement whereby the assets of two companies vest in one is known as merger.

Regulatory Aspects

Amalgamations, mergers and takeovers are governed by the following Acts/Regulations/Rules.

1. Section 390-396 A of Companies Act, 1956
2. Companies (Court) Rules, 1959
3. Listing Agreement
4. SEBI (Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers) Regulations, 2011
5. Securities Contracts Regulations Act, 1957

TAKEOVERS

Takeover has been defined as a business transaction whereby an individual or a group of individuals or a company acquires control over the assets of a company, either directly by becoming owner of those assets or indirectly by obtaining control of the management of the company. In the ordinary case, the company taken over is smaller but in a ‘reverse takeover’ a smaller company gains control over the larger company. This is different from ‘merger’ wherein the shareholding in the combined enterprise will be spread between the shareholders of the two companies. Normally the company which wants to takeover the other company acquires the shares of the target company either in a single transaction or a series of transactions. In case of amalgamation under Section 391-394 of the Companies Act, 1956 the amalgamating as well as amalgamated company have to apply to the High Court(s) for making order of amalgamation. However, the regulatory framework for controlling the takeover activities of a company consists of the Companies Act, 1956, Listing Agreement with Stock Exchanges and SEBI’s Takeover Code.

Takeover Bid

In simple language a takeover is acquisition of shares, voting rights in a company with a view to gaining control over the management of the company.

A “takeover bid” is an offer addressed to each shareholder of a company, whose shares are not closely held, to buy his shares in the company at the offered price within the stipulated period of time. It is addressed to the shareholders with a view to acquiring sufficient number of shares to give the offeror company, voting control of the target company. It is usually expressed to be conditional upon a specified percentage of shares being the subject-matter of acceptance by or before a stipulated date.

A takeover bid is a technique, which is adopted by a company for taking over control of the management and affairs of another company by acquiring its controlling shares.

KINDS OF TAKEOVERS

(1) Friendly takeover;
(2) Hostile takeover.

Friendly Takeover

A friendly takeover is with the consent of taken over company. There is an agreement between the management of two companies through negotiations and the takeover bid may be with the consent of majority or all shareholders of the target company, which is referred to as friendly takeover bid.

Hostile Takeover

When an acquirer company does not offer the target company the proposal to acquire its undertaking but silently and unilaterally pursues efforts to gain control against the wishes of existing management such acts of acquirer are known as ‘takeover raids’ or hostile ‘takeover bids’. The main distinction between a friendly takeover and hostile takeover is whether there is a mutual understanding between the acquirer and the taken over company. When there is a mutual understanding, it is friendly takeover otherwise it is termed as hostile takeover.

In a takeover, the taking over company has two options, viz., (I) to merge both companies into one and operate both the undertakings as a single entity, and (ii) to keep the takenover company a separate and independent company, with changed management, changed policies or even with a changed name.

Takeover may be of different types depending upon the intention of the management of the taking over company.

1. A takeover may be a straight takeover which is accomplished by the management of the taking over company by acquisition of shares of another company with an intention to maintain and operate the takeover company as an independent legal entity.

2. Another type of takeover may be with an intention of capturing the ownership of the takeover company in order to merge both companies into one and operate business and undertakings of both the companies as a single legal entity.

3. A third type of take over is the takeover of a sick industrial company for the purpose of revival of its business. This is accomplished by an order of the Board for Industrial and Financial reconstruction (BIFR) under the provisions of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985

4. Bail out takeover is substantial acquisition of shares in a financially weak company not being a sick industrial company, in pursuance to a scheme of rehabilitation approved by a public financial institution or a scheduled bank (hereinafter referred to as the lead institution). The lead institution is responsible for ensuring compliance with the provisions of the SEBI (Substantial Acquisition and Takeovers) Regulations, 1997, which regulate the bail out takeovers.

CULTURAL ISSUES ON MERGERS, ACQUISITIONS AND TAKE OVERS

Accenture and the Economist Intelligence Unit in the first half of 2006, surveyed senior executives in North America, Europe and Asia on their mergers and acquisitions (M&A) activities and their experience in integrating companies. Similar survey was also administered to 156 executives based in India during the fourth quarter of 2006.

Of the total respondents in India, 40% were senior-level. About 64% were from companies that had global annual revenues of US$100m or more and 36% had revenues of US$1bn or more. 45% executive mainly played roles in strategy and business development and 42% in general management. Their companies were from a wide range of industries, including financial services (25%), IT and technology (21%) and professional services (13%).

Following are the key findings of the survey on human and cultural factors.

Human and Cultural Factors

Accenture Survey points out that for integrating a cross border company, 43%, respondents found addressing cultural issues as critical. The real challenge, after an acquisition is, therefore, the integration of the two companies. That is why the integration should be given a focused attention. There should be a focus on aligning the acquired company’s processes through the business excellence model.
Human Factor

Studies on post-acquisition performance have primarily been a centre of interest of researchers in strategy, economics and finance. The identified factors of performance variations have usually ranged from the industry match (complementary of assets, similarities of markets and products, synergies in production, strategic orientation, etc.), pricing policy, financing and size of the operation and type of the transaction, bidding conditions, etc.

By contrast to quantitative measurements from finance and economics, the research, which has focused on the organizational and human side of M&As, has mostly dealt with identifying factors that might have played a role in the integration process of the merging entities and led to successful outcomes. Despite the absence of a direct causal correlation, several dimensions have been identified as having an important impact on M&A performance, these include psychological, cultural and managerial factors, knowing that the human factor covers at the same time employees and managers of the companies.

Psychological Factors

A large part of the existing research has looked at the psychological effects of M&A on employees. Scholars have pointed out that strong impact that the operations could have on employees, in particular the resulting increase in stress and anxiety due to changes in work practices and tasks, managerial routines, colleagues environment, the hierarchy, etc. Further, merger and acquisitions often introduce an environment of uncertainty among employees about job losses and future career development. It has been pointed out that stress and insecurity may lead to employee resistance to change, absenteeism and lack of commitment to work and the organisation. Employee resistance prevents the building up of a well functioning organisation and constructive cooperative environment. Lack of work commitments have a negative impact on individual and organizational performance measured in terms of productivity, quality, and service. Moreover, a relationship between organizational and financial performance has also been identified which may have consequences for the market value of company.

On the other hand, it has been argued that satisfied employees are presumed to work harder, better, and longer with higher productivity records. Even though a direct relationship between job satisfaction and corporate performance remains to be established with certainty, it appears that lower job satisfaction is a cause of higher absenteeism, which, in turn is shown to have a negative influence on organizational performance.

Cultural factors

Cultural differences look like playing both ways. Although distant cultural environments make the integration process harder, the lack of culture-fit or cultural compatibility has often been used to explain M&A failure. Cultural differences have also been considered a source of lower commitment to work, making co-operation more difficult, particularly from employees of the acquired company. In this regard, scholars have largely given account of the lack of co-operation momentum stemming from a “we” versus “them” attitude, resulting in hostility among employees.

It is, therefore, no surprise that strong cultural differences are usually associated with a negative impact on M&A performance, since the integration process is less easy and deals with higher employee resistance, communication problems, and lower interest in co-operation. Noticeably, cultural clashes are likely to be more prominent in cross-national than domestic acquisitions, since such mergers bring together not only two companies that have different organizational cultures but also organizational cultures rooted in national diversity. The scholars have identified building up of a common culture as essential for the success of merger and acquisitions. Researchers have found that high levels of employees’ social identification with the organization’s identity results in increased work effort, higher performance, reduced staff turnover and more frequent involvement in positive organizational citizenship.

TAKE OVER DEFENSES

Hostile takeovers directly made to the shareholders of target company has resulted in a multiple defensive strategies by corporate from being taken over by the company.

Few of the defensive strategies are as follows.

1. Pac-man Defense

   Under this strategy target company attempts to purchase the shares of acquirer company provided it has substantial cash flow or liquidable asset.

2. White Knight

   This is seeking another company (called white knight company) seeking merger, for rescuing the target company.

3. Green Mail

   This is repurchase of the stock by target company at a higher premium to avoid hostile takeovers.
4. Poison pills

Creation of securities (which is also called poison pills) which provide their holders with special rights exercisable only after a period of time following the occurrences of triggering event.

5. Refusal by the Board to register a transfer is also being adopted as a defensive strategy.

LESSON ROUND UP

- A friendly takeover is with the consent of taken over company. There is an agreement between the management of two companies through negotiations and the takeover bid may be with the consent of majority or all shareholders of the target company, which is referred to as friendly takeover bid.

- When an acquirer company does not offer the target company the proposal to acquire its undertaking but silently and unilaterally pursues efforts to gain control against the wishes of existing management such acts of acquirer are known as ‘takeover raids’ or hostile ‘takeover bids’.
SEBI (SAST) Regulations, 2011 requires the acquirer to make a public announcement and a public offer on acquisition of a certain percentage of shares or voting rights in a company. However, certain circumstances have been provided in regulation 10, subject to which if an acquirer acquires the specified percentage of shares or voting rights, he would be exempted from the requirement of making an open offer to the existing shareholders of the company.

Any acquirer, who acquires shares or voting rights which (taken together with shares or voting rights, if any, held by him) would entitle him to more than specified percentage of shares or voting rights, shall disclose at every stage the aggregate of his shareholding or voting rights in that company to the company and to the stock exchanges where shares of the target company are listed.

Trigger point is a point where provisions of SEBI (SAST) Regulations, 2011 i.e. takeover code gets triggered and the acquirer is required to follow public announcement and other requirements as mentioned in the regulations in respect of further acquisition.

An acquirer who intends to acquire shares which along with his existing shareholding would entitle him to exercise 25% or more voting rights, can acquire such additional shares only after making a public announcement (PA) to acquire at least additional 26% of the voting capital of Target Company from the shareholders through an open offer.

An acquirer who holds 25% or more but less than maximum permissible non-public shareholdings can acquire such additional shares as would entitle him to exercise more than 5% of the voting rights in any financial year ending March 31 only after making a public announcement to acquire at least additional 20% shares of target company from the shareholders through an open offer.

There are several obligations/compliances to be fulfilled by the acquirer, target company and merchant banker at the time of taking over a company.
